

THE WEBEX PHONE SYSTEM... A BETTER ALTERNATIVE TO ZOOM

Spring is in the air as we prepare for warmer weather. Comwave is ready with all your telecom needs to ensure you can focus on your business. When it comes to your telecom... "We Run It... You Use It".

Enabling Collaboration and Productivity with Comwave Webex

As employees continue to return to the office, the adjustment from working from home to working collaboratively at the office can take some time. That's why it's crucial that employers aid this adjustment and address their office communication technology to prioritize reliable, collaborative systems. The Comwave Webex Business Phone system is the perfect improvement, as it incorporates your business phone system and existing contacts together with internal audio and video calling and instant messaging for a comprehensive all-in-one solution. The features of Comwave Webex are ideal for welcoming employees back to the office and encouraging collaboration, and the ability to add new phone lines in just minutes offers more scalability than ever. Whether your employees are discussing an idea, using video to solve visual problems, or sharing files, instant messages or their screens with one another, the Comwave Webex Business Phone system handles it all.

Connecting Employees at the Office and at Home

In March of 2022, more employers than ever are offering flexible hybrid schedules for their employees, with employees spending some days in the office and some days at home during any given week. With these flexible accommodations comes the need for reliable, secure and easy-to-use technology to facilitate productivity from anywhere, and that's where the Comwave Webex Business Phone system offers everything an employer needs. Comwave Webex does not require any additional hardware, and with an app for both desktop and mobile, employees are able to access their business communication tools from any device, anywhere. From audio and video calling to instant messaging, file sharing and screen sharing, Comwave Webex gives employees the option to collaborate and get in touch using any of their preferred means of communication. As a comprehensive, secure communication system available from anywhere, Comwave Webex is what enables productive, flexible and modern business communication.

Addressing 'Shadow IT' Within Your Organization

As businesses adjust to the new hybrid office, an emerging challenge is in addressing 'Shadow IT'. This refers to employees bringing or relying on their own technology solutions to complete official company business. Not only can this result in official company business being left unprotected through unsecured technology channels, it also results in incomplete data within the organization, which can hinder organizational decision making. With employees having adjusted to some of their own technology solutions during their time working at home, that's why it's so important for businesses to offer secure, comprehensive collaboration technology, both at the office and accessible remotely. The Comwave Webex Business Phone system offers the security and comprehensive features needed to address Shadow IT and satisfy your employees. With data flow encrypted, and mobile and desktop apps available for work away from the office, the Comwave Webex Business Phone System is designed with the modern office in mind. And with audio and video calling, file sharing, screen sharing and instant messaging functionality, communication remains all in one place, without the need for an individual, dedicated system for your phone, video calls or instant messaging.
